4TH ANNIVERSARY OF PASTORATE OF REV. W. P. WILKS IS OBSERVED SUNDAY

Attendance So Large Both Auditoriums Required to Seat Congregation

SEVEN NEW DEACONS NAMED AT SERVICE

Reports of Officials Show a Marked Growth of the Denomination

The Central Baptist congregation yesterday celebrated the fourth anniversary of the pastorate of Dr. W. P. Wilks, the attendance being so large as to necessitate throwing open the doors between the main and the Sunday school auditorium. Reports from two of the church officials, B. L. Malone and T. E. Williams, showed a marked progress in the church in the last four years. Now the membership is nearly 100 per cent in advance of what it was four years ago, being over 700 at this time. Despite this year having been an uncertain one in a business way, more money was paid in for church purposes than during any previous year. Owing mainly to the fact that a new study has been built lately for Dr. Wilks, and because some members who had been out of work had not been urged to pay the usual amounts, a debt of $869 was found owing by the church. Under the leadership of B. L. Malone, who personally made a liberal donation, all but a small amount was raised at the meeting yesterday—the remainder to be given by members not present, later on in the week. The singing program as arranged by Mrs. Seneca Burr, the organist, was especially attractive. There was a duet by Mrs. Walter H. Todd and B. B. Pickens, a solo by T. L. Ware, besides the congregational singing was led spiritedly by the large choir.

The following were named deacons, on recommendation of a committee headed by B. L. Malone, in addition to those already serving: T. E. Williams, T. J. Wear, C. McMillan, D. D. Gibson, J. E. Owen, John Matlock, A. L. Frazier. Dr. Wilks explained that as about half of the membership of the church lived in West Albany, and the other half in central Albany, the new apportionment of deacons was made so as to give equal representation to both neighborhoods.

The pastor spoke from the text: "We spend our years as a tale that is told," saying in part:

In the story of the past four years of Central Baptist church, two things stand out prominently:

First, it is a story of steady growth. When the officers of a class asked William Jennings Bryan to suggest a motto for their class, he said, "How would 'Ever Green' do?" They did not know whether to take as a jest or an insult till he explained that so long as a plant is green it continues to grow and that to be ever green means to be ever growing. In this sense, we might speak of our church. There has been no spasmodic, mushroom growth anywhere, but a constant increase along all lines. The average attendance of the Sunday school is more than double that of four years ago, the growth being in every department from beginners to adults. It is not "top heavy" anywhere. But even more satisfactory has been its growth in efficiency, now having a trained and capable teaching force of almost forty officers and teachers. Congregations have grown in the same way, there seldom being a Sunday now that the main auditorium is sufficient to hold the congregation for either morning or evening services. The membership has grown from 489 to more than 700, and a far larger percentage of the 700 is actively enlisted in the work of the church than was true of the 489. Despite the financial depression everywhere this year and the "boom days" then, the contributions have doubled.

Membership Campaign Extended by the Lend-A-Hand Bible Classmen

When Prof. W. W. Benson, its teacher, told the "Lend-A-Hand" Bible class Sunday morning the story of a certain ship wreck, in which St. Paul was the principal mariner, he loaded his story with a generous wealth of anecdotes and wise conclusions. The newest story told by the speaker had its origin in Florence Saturday. Prof. Benson said that one of his good Presbyterian friends at the Shoals city tried to get him to stay all night with him, and only gave in when the Professor explained that he had to teach Sunday, on the ship wreck of St. Paul. "I would certainly like to hear how you come out on it," said the Florence Calvinist.

"You know the lesson plainly teaches predestination and election." To this Prof. Benson told his class of over 90 men that he replied, "Well, I guess Paul thought he was going to be saved, but I notice the majority seized boards, pieces of the ship and any thing they could get to help save themselves; they evidently did not know for sure that they were saved, and I don't, therefore I am going to keep on working out my salvation with fear and trembling." Their teacher had saved this thrust of wit to the last, and it worked. The men were convulsed with laughter.

Eugene Rainey, president of the class, conducted the preliminary exercises, and presided as Moderator, when the business session came at the close of the lesson. It was shown in this meeting that 45 each of the "Reds" and "Blues" showed up at the opening, but that later the "Blues" received accessions, until they surpassed their late antagonists. According to the secretary, S. H. Malone, 93 members were present yesterday. To encourage still more men to attend the "Lend-A-Hand" class, W. W. Callahan said that he believed in advertising what the class had for men, and made a definite suggestion that was adopted—namely, to have placards printed and placed in hotels and public places, telling the object of the class and inviting men to join it.

As an aftermath of the late hot membership campaign, which by the way, has been extended—D. E. Henderson, leader of the victorious "Reds" announced that certain of his men were to meet him in an adjoining room at the rise of the class, when amid cheers, W. A. Thompson countered by telling all the "True Blues" to remain in their places for a council of war to be held as quick as the "Red" soldiers retired.

Prof. Benson began by giving a resume account of many of the great sea voyages of history. He concluded that none of them carried such great destinies for the world as the voyage of St. Paul to the world's capital. The teacher pointed out a number of lessons, especially drawing attention to: human recantation in face of danger, artificial distinctions, "Gratitude to God," and "Lightening the ship." Prof. Benson said that perhaps more vital lessons were wrapped up in "Lightening the ship" than in the other divisions of his lesson. The burden of "extravagance" was ordered overboard. "Discourtesy" was declared able to wreck businesses and individual usefulness. "Negligence" was mentioned, and in this connection the story was told of a store keeper who played checkers most of the time and who took on a very pained expression whenever anyone came in to buy. "Dishonesty" was said to be a weight of death. As regarding "health" the speaker said in easting, most people need to "lighten up a bit." Some were said to work too much, and to worry too much. Isolation was declared to be the parent of loneliness, and the lonesome person was said not only to be miserable, but to be growing little if at all.

Quoted Roosevelt

Speaking of ingratitude, it was declared to be the most damnable of all sins. Roosevelt was declared to have been a real man, although in the nature of things he got few votes in this section. It was declared that the former President in speaking of a well known atheist called him a "dirty little infidel." The speaker then described in sweeping sentences how no reasonable man could think without

Silence of Nearly Three Months Will End When Arbuckle Testifies Today

(International News Service)
SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 28.—A silence unbroken for nearly three months was to end this afternoon. Roscoe (Fatty) Arbuckle, to date a mute spectator to the tragic drama which involves his future freedom, was again to take the center of the stage.

His trial for manslaughter was to reach its climax through his own testimony as to what happened behind the locked doors of his room at the St. Francis hotel on Labor Day. Arbuckle is anxious to go on the stand and the majority of his attorneys are favorable.

Second in interest to his appearance was the action of the state in issuing a subpoena for Louise Glaum, motion picture star, and a half dozen other Hollywood personages. They are to go on the stand as rebuttal witnesses for the state.

Chief Defense Counsel McNab promised several jolts for the state before he closes his case probably this afternoon. As it appeared today there was little possibility of a verdict before Saturday.

Anniston Man Will be Tried on Charge of Slaying Friend at the Latter's Home

(International News Service)
ANNISTON, Ala., Nov. 28.—Charles Allen McCullars, ex-service man, who has been in the county jail here for nearly a year, will be placed on trial December 8 on a charge of murdering John W. Landermilk in his apartment in this city just before Christmas last year. The prosecution will depend largely upon an alleged confession made by McCullars on the night of his arrest, in which he is said to have confessed the killing to Sheriff W. E. Parker and County Jailor Farrell.

McCullars was arrested by Sheriff Parker at the bier of his alleged victim to sit up with the corpse. McCullars is alleged to have gone to the Landermilk home during the absence of Landermilk and to have killed the latter when he returned to his home at midnight.

The defendant denies the killing and repudiates the alleged confession.

WEEKS IS SILENT YET ON SHOALS

REALTY MARKET IN TENNESSEE VALLEY SHOWS ACTIVITY AS FORD'S VISIT NEARS

Few Days Pass Without Big Realty Transaction in Tri-Cities

EYES OF NATION ARE TURNED ON VALLEY

People in Other States Beginning to Plan Investments Here

The eyes of the nation now seem to have turned toward the Tennessee Valley. During the past week there has been a steady improvement in realty circles from one extremity of the valley to the other. In view of the general belief that Henry Ford's offer for the Muscle Shoals project will be accepted, the realty market in the Tri-Cities has become unusually active and word from there declares that few days pass without some big realty transfer.

Several days ago three automobiles, loaded with passengers, passed through here enroute to Sheffield. The visitors declared they were on their way to the Tennessee Valley from Georgia to make realty purchases in the Tri-Cities and in other sections of the valley. These visitors declared people in their state were fairly certain that Mr. Ford would be awarded the Shoals, and they expected to reap benefit down there from the Tennessee river development, also.

Await Ford and Edison

Here in the valley attention in the Shoals negotiations was centered on the approaching visit of Mr. Ford and Thomas A. Edison. The exact date of the visit of these financiers had not been announced today, but Mr. Ford said several days ago that his inspection tour would occur "sometime after Thanksgiving."

This had led many persons to believe that they will be in the Shoals district during this week. Others believe they would postpone their inspection until after Christmas.

Notwithstanding the uncertainty of the date, the Tennessee Valley is making big preparations for their entertainment and delegations will be present in Sheffield from several cities of the district and probably from Memphis, Nashville and Birmingham, as well.

The decision of Secretary Weeks to wait until after the inspection trip to make his recommendations to congress has temporarily halted the negotiations, but people here were not discouraged and believed that following Ford's visit the negotiations would go forward swiftly to conclusion.

DECISION DELAYED

(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—Secretary of War Weeks this afternoon stated he did not expect that there would be any further steps in the negotiations between Henry Ford and the government for the lease of the Muscle Shoals nitrate plant until after Mr. Ford has made his proposed trip to the Alabama plant. The Secretary stated he had not yet been advised just when Mr. Ford will visit Alabama.

Following the Ford trip he expects that there will be conferences between Ford and Thomas A. Edison and then the Detroit manufacturer will return to Washington for a new conference with the Secretary of War.

Unofficial reports here indicate that Ford is expected to be in Alabama within a week or ten days and that he will confer with Secretary Weeks early in December. After the conference with the Secretary it is expected that adjustment will be made in the differences in the government's

HEADS OF AMERICAN-BRITISH WAR MOTHERS PLEDGE FIDELITY

Mrs. R. A. Dingby and Mrs. Amelia McCudden, Int'l.

"And never so long as we shall live will we raise our hands in mortal combat against each other!" declared Mrs. A. A. Dingby, of White Plains, N. Y., national head of the American War Mothers, as she clasped hands with Mrs. Amelia E. McCudden, British War Mother, who decorated America's Unknown Soldier, at a recent meeting in Philadelphia, where the mothers of the two nations' men pledged allegiance to each other and work for the cause of peace between nations. This joint declaration of fidelity brought forth thunderous applause from the assembled throng of women, all of whom were gold stars on their breasts, significant of the great sacrifice they had made during the great World War.

$20,000 IS FOUND UNDER THE BED OF ROBBER SUSPECT

(International News Service)
BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 28.—Two men are under arrest today, charged with participation in the $28,000 First National bank hold-up Saturday when the payroll of the Walton Shoe company was stolen from a bank truck.

John Dupont, 30, of Scranton, Pa., and James Luna, of Bristol, Tenn., are the men held. Beneath Dupont's bed police found a leather bag containing $20,000 in cash. Police say Luna has made a confession of the robbery.

STATE RESTS CASE AGAINST ACCUSED POSTAL OFFICIAL

(International News Service)
ORLANDO, Fla., Nov. 28.—The state finished its case against Lena Clarke, on trial here for the murder of Frederick A. Miltimore, at 11 o'clock this morning. It was announced to the International News Service that Miss Clarke would take the stand in her own behalf at 2 o'clock today. Previous to that statement court had taken a recess until 2 o'clock when her counsel requested the delay, giving as a reason the fact that the client was ill.

PROBE FOLLOWS FIRE IN THEATER

(International News Service)
NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 28.—A thorough investigation of fire hazards in all theatres here was promised by Mayor Fitzgerald today following the deaths of three persons and injury of 57 others in the fire which last night destroyed the Rialto theatre. More than 1,000 persons were in the theatre when the fire started.

Twelve Yale students were injured. Among the number was Hale Collum, of Nashville, Tenn.

DEATH OF BROTHERS BLAMED ON JONES

(International News Service)
TALLADEGA, Ala., Nov. 28.—Uriah Jones, charged with killing Chambers and Sims Hammons, two brothers, in a gun fight at a church several miles below Talladega several months ago, will be arraigned for trial here Wednesday.

The killing of the two Hammons boys created a sensation at the time. A brother of the dead man was shot to death a short time after the double tragedy in a liquor raid.

FOOTBALL TEAM TO BE BANQUET GUESTS

Alumni of the Decatur high school will hold their first annual banquet tonight at the Lyons hotel when members of the football team will be entertained by the alumni and the business men of Decatur. The banquet will begin at 8:30 o'clock.

During the evening a number of addresses will be made by former students and plans will be discussed informally for the development of the athletic side of the school. All alumni of the school were invited to attend the banquet tonight.

HISTORIC "DORM" DESTROYED BY FIRE

(International News Service)
DAVIDSON, N. C., Nov. 28.—Fire, which started at 4 a. m., destroyed Chambers dormitory, one of the oldest buildings on the Davidson college campus here today. The building was erected in 1837 and once housed former President Wilson when he was a Davidson student. One hundred and thirty students were housed in the dormitory and now are without shelter. Origin of the fire is unknown.

COMPROMISE NOW SOUGHT BY JAPAN TO CHECK HUGHES NAVAL PROPOSALS

Experts Finally Seem Willing to Bow Before American Opinion

JAPANESE SLOW UP WARSHIP BUILDING

All Repair Work on Completed Vessels is Ordered Abandoned

(International News Service)
TOKIO, Japan, Nov. 28.—Orders have been issued to Japanese government shipyards to cease all warship repairs and to slow down new work. It was announced today by the vice minister of the navy. No orders have been issued as yet to private dock yards where two dreadnaughts are under completion and where others are being laid down.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—From official sources it was learned today that while Japan's naval experts are prepared to insist strongly upon being allowed a 70 per cent navy, instead of the 60 per cent laid down by the Hughes program, they, nevertheless, are prepared to accept the American figures upon a condition. This condition is that all fortifications in the Pacific be dismantled. The Japanese experts have not yet signified their willingness to give up the 10-10-7 ratio demanded by the Tokyo foreign office, but they are becoming more aware of the fact that the American opposition to this increase is unshakable, and failing in their efforts to win over American opinion to the increase, the Japanese upon advice from Tokio are prepared to make the dismantling of the Pacific fortifications the price of their acceptance of the inevitable.

The three great American bases in the Pacific are at Hawaii, Guam and the Philippines. In the absence of official opinion regarding such a move, it is believed the American answer to such a proposal would be an emphatic "no."

American naval strategists have pointed out that Manila is roughly about 1,000 miles from Japan, while it is roughly six times that distance from San Francisco. In other words in the event of trouble between the United States and Japan, a Japanese fleet could reach America's far eastern possessions in one sixth of the time that an American ship could reach there.

It is not likely that the showdown will come until late in the week. It is considered probable that an open session of the conference will be arranged when Japan officially accepts the program. The belief prevails that the Japanese will ask an open session to announce their answer to the American proposal.

All of the foreign powers maintaining postoffices in China agreed today, with the exception of Japan, on the removal of these postoffices by January, 1922.

W. R. Smith is Still Improving

Dr. F. F. Poffey reported yesterday from Nashville, where he has been at the bedside of W. R. Smith. The physician left Mr. Smith at 2 o'clock Sunday afternoon and gives as his opinion that his condition is favorable to recovery. Mr. Smith has been critically ill since undergoing an operation for relief of a stomach disorder and advices from Nashville today are to effect that he is steadily gaining ground.

WILSON STILL IN POWER IN WORLD AFFAIRS

Potentially, invalid though he be, Woodrow Wilson is still a world figure and a world power. The furor aroused lately because Mr. Wilson received Arthur J. Balfour, but failed to receive Premier Briand of France is evidence of this. As the French are a democratic people, and have been for generations past, they know that Woodrow Wilson has no official power and no say in the affairs of the world, therefore the fact they feel slighted because of their Premier, was denied entrance to the Wilson home, while Balfour was received, can only be taken to mean that personally Mr. Wilson is regarded very highly in France, and that his influence is still regarded as a valuable asset in world affairs. It is a distinct tribute to the personality and standing of the former President, that so much notice should have been given the favor he chose to confer on Mr. Balfour. As a matter of fact the whole incident will soon be forgotten. It is closed now, and always was officially speaking. Mr. Wilson has no more official standing now simply because he is an ex-President, and a few years ago was the most powerful man in the world, than if he had remained a school teacher all through the years. It was as private citizen Woodrow Wilson, that he received the head of the British delegation to the disarmament conference. And it was as plain Arthur J. Balfour, that the English statesman was admitted to the Wilson home on S Street, Washington. M. Briand, had he enjoyed the distinction of knowing Mr. Wilson as long intimately as did Mr. Balfour, would beyond question have been received, had Mr. Wilson been able to receive him on the day that he called. Nothing is supposed to interfere with friendships of long standing. Because the French in some instances have chosen to read into the Balfour visit, something never thought of or intended, in their own affair. The French are not to be condemned any more than are third parties who some times feel misgivings at the intimate relations apparently existing between persons who are not equally acceptable to them. Just at this time, a wide difference exists between the English and the French point of view as regards land armaments, also as regards the proper treatment of the Germans beaten in the great war, but who steadily keep on arming, but who are slow in paying their war indemnity. It means a great deal to the French nation as to how public sentiment goes in America on the questions at issue between France and Great Britain, and they cannot be blamed from looking distrustfully on any action taken by the most powerful moulder of public opinion in the United States. The attitude of the French delegates, and the French people toward the Wilson-Balfour incident should be taken as a tribute to the high value placed on the influence of Woodrow Wilson by the world generally.

Much has been said and written about the love of a mother, and it is well and good. But there is another one who shares in these things whose name is seldom coupled with that of a mother, when talking of those things that has made mother love famous. This is the love of a father. It is he who goes hand in hand with the mother in caring for and planning for the little brood, and whose efforts largely augment those from the other source. It is he who when the child is in its infancy reads in its eyes and features the hope that lies just out yonder when that boy or girl grows larger, and in his bosom glows the fire of love for them that no condition in life can quench. It is he who sits with the mother through tire-some nights, watching for a ray of hope from the sick bed, and is willing to give and serve to unheard of ends that the one of his affection might be benefitted and brought back to health. And when sorrow comes, he stands by, and with his strong arm supports, and by words of counsel and cheer upholds the best traditions of a father. He is willing to spend and be spent, to serve and labor that these shall have the comforts and pleasure that others have. He is willing to give his all; and it does happen in a great many instances that he is reduced to poverty in his efforts to protect and defend the objects of his affection. It is he who plans and constructs and devises ways and means that these things shall be carried forward. If mother love is great, the love and devotion of a father walks hand in hand with the mother, and the two make an amalgamation of that something that death even cannot dissolve, or take away. All honor to the American father, who is a father in deed and in truth, for he constructs and helps carry forward the greatest institution on earth, and is always ready to contribute time, talent and money for the good of his offspring, when it is at all possible for him to do so.

He who has good health and a clear conscience is wealthy although he may not be able to sign his check for one dollar. Rich in satisfaction, rich in the ability to enjoy the beauties of the world about him, and drink in great truth's that cluster around him.

The menace of the impending boll weevil that threatened so strongly this season, and bids fair to outrival the damage done this season, next year, calls for serious thought and mature deliberation in the planning and cultivation of the next crop of cotton.

If it were not for certain sure developments in the Tennessee valley, the second section of the unemployment conference, which is to be held early next, would be exactly such more interest.

There is great inspiration in this fact in the history that is behind us, for young men, that most of the great achievements that were wrought or begun, were made by men who were in their twenties. Great explorers of dark and benighted continents, carrying the torch of religious freedom and holding it aloft that others might see; great discoveries, that brought hope and relief to suffering thousands, and caused the star of hope to again shine in their pathway; great inventions, that have wrought miracles almost, bringing sight to the blind, restoring to limbs that were dormant, normalcy, and making over a body wrecked with blemishes; all these have been accomplished and more, and young men had much to do with bringing these things into existence. It will ever be thus; young life is inquiring, striving to find out and fathom, and if one will follow the dictates of an injuring mind, along right lines, something worth while will be written to your credit.

The trouble about Bolshevism and likisms is that their advocates forget that the first thing first of civilization is to perspire, then eat, next work, then wear clothes, again work some more, then build a house, keep on working and get educated, then start all over again at the old job of work. In other words life is just one job of work after another. As to whether such a program seems damnable or not depends what sort of a "who" is doing the thinking.

Authorities are a unit that early maturing seed should be planted, thorough preparation be done, and intensive cultivation be the rule. We must profit by the experiences of others, or disaster will overtake us. No hap-shot methods will win. A plausible idea would be, not to plant such a large acreage that the crop cannot be subjected to frequent cultivation.

No argument is necessary to the thoughtful man, that he must look to greater power on the farm. The scarcity of farm labor and the high cost of that which is available, makes it imperative that another source must be drawn from. The great trouble in this country has always been the slow method of preparation. Today, modern farm implements are solving this great problem and draw back. The farm tractor has come, and come to stay.

It is a very good idea to speak well of any worthy movement fostered by your fellow-townsmen. Whatever energies you exert, whether it be in sums of money, work, or whatever it be, let it be done willingly; your moral support of the plan will mean much.

The use of dish-water is a splendid lotion for the hands, especially if you are helping mother, and by the application of it you are taking some burdens off of her hands.

Young people who are thoughtful attract attention at once in any gathering.

Hap-shot methods never did accomplish anything worth while; there must be a definite line of action. Towns, cities and communities outgrow their public institutions, and unless larger preparation is made for larger growth, a great harm can be done to all interests.

Individualism is a great asset, and they who know it and keep it sacred, will never have cause to regret it.

Naval disarmament promises to save the U. S. $200,000,000. The next question is who will keep it out of the political pork barrel?

The world is not willing to stop and pause when great mile-stones on her journey are reached. There is a stagger to observe them in some localities, but commercial interests call, and they can be heard if only in a whisper by the commercial interests.

A great hero is he who strives to elevate; a great victory is that which is won over ignorance and vice.

The great enthusiasm that prevails in the football camp, bids fair to outrival the national game, base-ball. The public likes thrills, and this is furnished in a large degree when two elevens match skill and muscle.

If every city, town and community tackled its problems with the determination and earnestness that characterizes a football tackle, there would absolutely be no obstacles over which they could not triumph, if it be possible to surmount.

So nice, instead of contradicting each other and calling each other vile names, Senators Penrose and Heflin, had what they flung at each other expunged from the Senate record. Boise said something about Senator Heflin representing "black darkness" in Alabama; while J. Thomas replied to Penrose that no state was so completely manipulated by "predatory interests" as Pennsylvania.

Mere harmless hoboes are respectfully informed that mail clerks are ordered to shoot and make identifications later. Said hoboes will do well to ride the rods and cling to the side doors of Pullmans in the future.

It is getting mighty cold to open the door over in China. China did not say so much—perhaps results came because of the fact there are 400,000,000 yellow men backing Dr. Koo.

We are about to disavow the navy, why not disarm the army.

There is another distinction, with a serious difference, as many a ruined stomach can testify—that between an incendiary and a good cook.

Another evidence the women have come to power in this nation—the politicians have abolished the tax on face powder.

If battleships had not proved hardships they never have been scrapped.

A GREAT ALABAMA ASSET
To the Editor of The Age-Herald:
Has it ever occurred to you what a wonderful developer the Alabama Power company is for Alabama now and in the future? To think that we have headquarters in Birmingham of a power company strong enough to lease from the government and put in active operation a hundred thousand horse power plant in the state of Alabama that promised to be idle and rusted out for want of somebody strong enough to pay the government a satisfactory price. And then, too, on terms that will not interfere with any trade that the government may make in the disposition of the water power plant located in Alabama on the Tennessee river.

Just to think of it, this Alabama Power company, which is big enough already without the use of this immense plant in which the government has invested nearly $50,000,000, is now furnishing Georgia and North and South Carolina the electric power to turn the wheels that spin and weave our cotton in the South. We are so accustomed to big things here that it looks as though nothing is ever said about some of the great things that occur in our midst.

Let's boost Alabama things and let's buy Alabama products and help each other in every way we can. The spirit has built up New England and other sections of the North. Yours very truly,
ROBERT JEMISON.
Birmingham, Nov. 21, 1921.

The Modern Spirit.

Two little boys who prided themselves on their courage were sitting over the nursery fire and discussing apparitions. "But," said one very confidentially, "shouldn't you really be in a most awful funk if you did see a ghost—a most evil-looking one, I mean?" "Good gracious, no!" was the boastful reply. "I should just say, carelessly, in a throaty voice, 'Good evening, Devil! going strong? What?'"

"Hit the Nail on the Head."

"To hit the nail on the head," now suggests the competent carpenter, but originally referred to the nail or pin which marked the center of the bull's eye.—Ernest Weekley in the Cornhill Magazine (London).

Yeast Vitamon Tablets
Greatest Complexion
Secret

Banishes Skin Eruptions, Puts On Firm Flesh.

Of What Use Are Beautiful Features if You Have an Ugly Skin, Flabby Flesh, Hollow Cheeks, or a Scrawny Neck? Mastin's VITAMON Tablets are Positively Guaranteed to Give You New Health, Beauty and a More Rounded Face and Figure.

If you want to quickly clear your skin and complexion, put some firm, healthy flesh on your bones, increase your nerve force and power, and look and feel 100 per cent better, simply try taking two of Mastin's yeast VITAMON Tablets with each meal and watch results. Mastin's VITAMON Tablets contain highly concentrated yeast-vitamins as well as the two other still more important vitamins (Fat Soluble A and Water Soluble C). They positively will not upset the stomach or cause gas but, on the contrary, are a great aid to digestion, to overcome constipation and as a general conditioner of the whole system. Pimples, boils and skin eruptions seem to vanish like magic under their purifying influence, the complexion becomes fresh and beautiful, the cheeks rosy instead of pale, the lips red instead of colorless, the eyes bright instead of dull. So rapid and amazing are the results that success is absolutely guaranteed or the trial costs you nothing. Be sure to remember the name—Mastin's VITAMON—the original and genuine yeast-vitamin tablet. There is nothing else like it, so do not accept imitations or substitutes. You can get Mastin's VITAMON Tablets at all good druggists.

PERLEY-YOE

A wedding of unusual interest took place last evening at 6 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Shilling on East High Street, when Mrs. Tullola Howe Yoe became the bride of Mr. John W. Perley.

To the strains of Mendelssohn's Wedding March, the ushers, Dr. J. O. Quaintance and Mr. Pace Bailey, advanced into the parlor, followed by the bride and groom, who marched over to the large bay window which had been converted into a bower of potted plants and white chrysanthemums, and were there met by the Rev. H. P. Myers, who officiated, using the ever impressive ring ceremony, during which the "Flower Song" was softly rendered on the piano by Mrs. Frank L. Perley.

Only the nearest relatives witnessed the ceremony.

The bride is the widow of the late Rev. Alfred M. Yoe, of the North Alabama Methodist Conference, and the mother of Prof. John Howe Yoe of the University of Virginia. Though she has resided in Charlottesville only a short while, she has already won for herself a host of friends by her charming personality.

The groom is a prominent business man of this city and is well known here.

The bride was attired in a dark blue travelling suit with accessories to match.

Immediately after the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Perley left amid a shower of rice and good wishes. They will visit in Birmingham, Mobile and other southern points, returning home December 6th.—Exchange.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Perley of Charlottesville, Va., will arrive Tuesday to be the guests of their son, Frank H. Yoe.

Misses Nella Martin, Dorothy Brown and Mary Jo Love have returned to Lula Compton Seminary in Birmingham, after a visit to Mrs. B. F. Martin.

POTTERY EXHIBIT CARNEGIE LIBRARY

Diary of a Fashion Model

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

She Chats About a Low-Waisted Dinner Gown.

YESTERDAY was one of those rush days, when everything seems to happen at once. In the midst of it all Miss Teresa Beverly appeared. Of course, she was in a hurry, and as Madame was busy with another of her special clients I had the task of trying to meet Miss Beverly's wants.

"But it's Madame I wish to see," she interjected as I endeavored to explain that Madame was engaged at the moment.

"Madame will be with you in a few minutes," I repeated in the most distinct tones I could.

"Oh," she sighed. "Perhaps I can find something that will suit you if you will tell me what you want." I said as soothingly as I could.

"Well," she said, "you can show me some dinner gowns, but I won't make up my mind until after I talk with Madame."

"Very well, that will be all right," I replied, sweetly, for I knew that Madame would hasten her present interview, as she quite realizes the erratic ways of Miss Beverly.

In a few minutes I appeared, wearing the gown that is illustrated.

"What sort of stuff is that?" asked Miss Beverly, in somewhat ungracious tones.

"This is a white matelasse—a rich silken material that is something on the order of a damask, only the motifs are rather loosely woven, so that they seem to be raised a little bit from the rest of the material," I answered.

"What a plain bodice," remarked Miss Beverly.

"It shows one of the newest lines, for, as you see, the waistline is quite low," I answered.

Just at that moment Madame appeared.

"I'm so glad to see you," declared Miss Beverly, as she turned to greet Madame.

Crystal Trims White Matelasse to Make This Unusual Gown for Dinner Wear.

"for now I shall be able to decide on a dinner gown."

"This is one of my most attractive models," declared Madame, as I walked slowly across the room.

"It is rather interesting," replied Miss Beverly, "although it seems to me to have a very plain bodice."

However, Madame reassured her as to the desirability of that feature, and then said:

"I think the simplicity of this gown should appeal to you, and, as you see, there is just a touch of black in the ornament that lends decided chic to this model."

"Perhaps you're right," declared Miss Beverly in more complacent tones, for Madame always manages to soothe her.

"You see," continued Madame, "when I use such lovely material as the matelasse, there is no need to introduce much color. The strands of crystal that hang from the black and white ornament make a musical tinkle as the wearer of this gown walks."

"I'm fond of bead or bugle decorations, so that suits me very well," declared Miss Beverly, who had now arisen and was studying the gown with minute care.

"The train is effective," commented Madame.

"I suppose that might add a 'twist' to my stature," remarked Miss Beverly, with a smile.

"Well," replied Madame, also smiling, "I cannot say that it will really do that, but it gives the appearance of greater length to the figure, and lends a certain air of dignity to the gown."

"Then I think that I shall have it just as it is," said Miss Beverly. "Let me see the ornament more closely."

I walked toward her.

"Ah, just as I thought—jet and crystal," she remarked; then turned abruptly, and, calling good-by to Madame, walked away.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl 19 years old. I am engaged to a man several years older than myself. I have been engaged to him for three years. I love him dearly.

I don't think he loves me any more by the way he acts. When we are alone he treats me nicely, but when we are in the presence of my girl friends or a crowd he acts as though he is afraid the people will really think he cares for me. When he is away from me I know that he flirts with other girls, because they have told me so.

Will you please give me some advice as to the way I should treat him?

BLUE EYES.

BLUE EYES: If you truly care for your fiance you will continue to treat him just as you always have done. You should be glad he doesn't make a parade of his affection in public, my dear. Have more confidence in him, and try to look on the sunny side of things, not the gloomy side. You were very, very young when you became engaged. When are you to be married? I hope not until every doubt has vanished from your heart, and every possible cause from his conduct.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am 18 years old, and am in love with a young man of 20. He calls to see me about three or four times a week, and takes me any place I want to go, except to parties. I suppose it's jealousy.

I wondered if it would be wise to mention changing friendship to see what he would say.

Please advise me how to get him to go to parties with me.

WORRIED.

WORRIED: I believe you are devoting too much time to the young man, my dear. It would be advisable not to permit him to call so often. If you are not engaged you should associate with other young persons and enjoy pleasant times with them. Perhaps when he sees you have other friends who are attentive to you he will "wake up" to the fact that you would enjoy going to a party occasionally, and invite you.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a young man of 30. I am engaged to a young lady about my age, but her parents do not like me for some reason that nobody knows. It's almost impossible for me to see her, and when I do it's on the sly.

Please advise me what to do. I love her dearly, and I'm going to marry her, regardless of her parents' wishes, but I don't like to do it, I'm having a lot of trouble about it. Nothing we do seems to help.

DOUBTFUL.

DOUBTFUL: It would be better not to marry your fiance without her parents' consent, my friend. Isn't there some way you can find out just why her family disapprove of you, and do all in your power to win their liking and respect? That would be the wisest thing to do, and you both will be happier if you do the right and proper thing.

Three Minute Journeys

By Temple Manning

WHERE A BRIDE IS ON EXHIBITION SEVEN LONG DAYS.

It is a curious thing that in a land so careful in the public appearance of women, as is Morocco, a girl should be compelled to sit in private exhibition for her women friends for seven long days before she departs to the home of the man who is to be her husband.

In one very important detail of the Moroccan marriage customs, however, is evidenced the complete separation of the sexes which is so much a part of Moroccan life. This is in the celebration of the wedding. Not even the bridegroom is in the home of the bride when the marriage party is given there. Nor is the bride present at the celebration given at the bridegroom's home. Both bride and bridegroom entertain their friends of their own sex in their own homes.

For seven days the marriage rejoicings go on, to the accompaniment of the beating of drum and the blowing of pipes and flutes. But while the bridegroom joins his friends in celebrating the event, the bride must sit motionless, with downcast eyes, on a throne of cushions in the center of the chief room in her own house. She is not supposed even to see the various persons about her. But she knows that all her own girlhood friends or the women friends of her mother.

Each of the principal guests is costumed and "adorned" much as is the bride. Their faces are painted red, their eyelids and the skin under their eyes, their under-lips, the palms of their hands and the fingers up to the first joint are stained brown. Thumb-rings and anklets, as well as many bracelets, are prominent. The feet of these guests are dyed the color of iodine and gaudy with multi-colored slippers.

It is on the seventh day that the bride says farewell to her parents and the home from which she may never before have stirred. In a box-like container—just as though she were a conignment of goods—she is borne to the home of the bridegroom to the accompaniment of blaring music.

Automobile Victim Dead of Injuries

(International News Service)

BIRMINGHAM, Nov. 28.—Injuries received Sunday, when an automobile in which he was riding, plunged over the viaduct here into the Louisville and Nashville railroad yards, resulted in the death of W. D. Estes, president of the Estes Lumber company. Mrs. Estes and Mrs. Martha Wilkerson, of Cullman, were injured also when the accident occurred. Their recovery is doubtful.

RATE SUSPENDED
(International News Service)
WASHINGTON, Nov. 28.—The interstate commerce commission today suspended until January 22 the operation of certain freight schedules of the Alabama and Northwestern railway company, providing for the cancellation of the existing commodity rate of 11 1-2 cents per hundred on lumber and articles taking the same rate from points on the railroad to Selma, Ala.

The motorist who has driven a Buick longest is the one who appreciates Buick most

W. C. Jessup, President and General Manager of the E. H. Hotchkiss Company, Norwalk, Conn., is a staunch admirer of Buick. He tells why:

"My Model 29 Buick, purchased in 1911, has now run 150,000 miles.

"Winter and summer, it has traveled over every kind and condition of road. It has gone through miles of mud at a stretch. It has traveled for hours over Florida sands. It has plowed through snow drifts. Yet in all these years I have never had to get out of my car except for tire trouble. It always keeps going.

"The same clutch, cylinders, transmission, differential, etc., that were in the car when it was delivered are still in perfect working order."

Mr. Jessup's account of his Buick's performance is characteristic of the service given by Buicks everywhere, and accounts for the overwhelming sentiment—You can always depend on Buick.

Negro Put in Pen For Safekeeping

(International News Service)
AIKEN, S. C., Nov. 28.—Curtis Franklin, negro, was rushed this afternoon to the state penitentiary at Columbia for safe keeping, following an alleged attack by the negro on the wife of a prominent farmer. Feeling here is at fever heat. Large crowds of armed men secured the vicinity for the assailant. Franklin was caught Sunday afternoon and brought to Aiken, later being rushed to Columbia.

ALABAMA HONORED
MONTGOMERY, Ala., Nov. 28.—(Special)—Alabama had a place with England and Cuba when the body of America's unknown soldier was placed in its grave at Arlington National cemetery November 11, according to information from persons who were present. The floral wreath prepared for Alabama by the Rosemont Gardens of Montgomery was one of the three placed on the grave of the unknown hero.

COTTON MARKET OPENING IS EASY

NEW YORK, Nov. 28.—The cotton market opened easy today at a net decline of 17 to 30 points, influenced by weak cables, selling by Japanese and Southern interests and pressure from local buyers. Wall street was the best buyer. After the opening the list became irregular, advancing about 10 points from which it again reacted. Fears of labor trouble in the New England mills checked outside buying.

CALIFORNIA GIRL IS DECLARED THE MOST SHAPELY IN AMERICA

Miss Gertrude Eggett, aged twenty-five, of Fresno, California, is the most beautifully formed young woman in America. At least that is what the judges in a contest in which over 10,000 photographs were submitted decided. The slender, marvelously supple girl is a natural athlete. She is a brunette, with brown eyes and dark brown hair, perfect teeth and superabundant vitality and health. Although twenty-five, she does not look over twenty. She is 5 feet 7 inches in height and weighs 136 pounds.

4th Anniversary Observed Sunday

Better than these is the growth of fellowship. For four years harmony has prevailed in the fullest possible sense. Not once has there been a disagreement or other disturbance to mar the fellowship among our members. We are one great family of brethren and sisters in Christ Jesus.

The second feature of this story is the grace which God has manifested toward us. In the literature of the Restoration we frequently find an expression like this: "The good hand of God upon us." How we may join them in saying this. His hand has been upon us for good during these years. That explains the secret of the success attending our work together. May we ever wait till His hand leads and He directs us.

How do we tell the tale of these four years? The old man in his dotage, leans back upon his staff and tells an interesting story of his years; but the golden days are past. He revels in departed days. But the youth tells the tale of his years upright with his face to the future. He tells of his boyhood experiences but as a prelude to that which he hopes is yet to be. His golden days are yet to come. As a church, it appears to me that we should have the perspective of the youth. It is better farther on, if we shall but be faithful to the trust which is ours. These four years are but a preparation for greater things to come. Let us face the future with renewed determination to do our best for our Lord.

Lightning Bolt Is Fatal to One

LAWRENCE HEARS BUREAU MESSAGE

HILLSBORO, Ala., Nov. 28.—(Special)—Beginning here Monday afternoon, at 2 o'clock a series of community meetings will be held in all parts of Lawrence county for the purpose of explaining the mission of the farm bureau, how it is organized and how it coordinates its work after being organized.

At the request of the farmers and business men, County Agent John F. Yarbrough is rendering every assistance in order that all may have the desired information concerning this great farmers' organization which has now covered about 2,000 counties in the United States with a total membership between one million and two million.

James L. Herron, club leader of Auburn, spent one day of last week in the county with Mr. Yarbrough assisting in making the arrangements and preparing for the meetings, which will close with a county-wide rally at Moulton next Saturday morning. Commenting on the farm bureau, Mr. Herron states that it is a business organization of farmers, run by farmers themselves, for the purpose of solving their own problems. Seventeen counties in Alabama now have farm bureaus and at the present rate of organizing between 20 and 30 more will be organized before the end of the present year. At an early date a state farm bureau office will be established in Birmingham for the purpose of coordinating and correlating the work of the county bureaus and handling problems that are state-wide in their scope.

The dates and places of meetings in this county are as follows:

Monday, Nov. 28., Hillsboro, 2 p. m.; Caddo, 6 p. m.
Tuesday, Nov. 29., Pinhook, 10 a. m.; Redhill, 6 p. m.
Wednesday, Nov. 30., Mt. Hope, 10 a. m.; Lendersville, 6 p. m.
Thursday, Dec. 1., Mountain Home, 10 a. m.; Courtland, 2 p. m.
Friday, Dec. 2., Town Creek, 10 a. m.; Hutton, 6 p. m.
Saturday, Dec. 3., Moulton, 10 a. m.

thinking there was a God, and that gratitude to Him was a virtue, without which there was no virtue at all.

The Code of the Sea

In speaking of recantation danger set up in different people, the speaker said that just as some wanted to flee when the St. Paul ship was about to sink, so now some had a way of dodging moral issues. "There have been the faint heart all down the ages. They are in Decatur today, they are in Albany, they are on every hand. Too many are satisfied with a negative existence. God is satisfied only with a positive life."

"Peter had more to say about how much he loved Christ than all the other disciples, but at the crucial test he turned and fled. The theory and tradition of the sea is 'put women and children first,'" said the speaker. "Put the weak first. On land we do not follow that doctrine closely enough."

Makes Light of "Can't"

In speaking of the artificial distinctions made among men, it was declared that there were many. Some who had money could not forget that fact. "They seem very much impressed by it." "Culture" was said to be over-stressed by others, that if they had been to school a good deal or read a lot of books they could not forget it. Others were said to be content to know nothing and to have nothing, but who get very swollen up when they talked about what distinguished ancestors preceded them. Personal beauty was not discredited—that is, the women were to be allowed to stress it, "but ugly men who think they are handsome" were made light of, as were the New York City bootblacks, who felt themselves above those of smaller towns.

THE SLOUCHY MAN NEEDS A LIFT

Has Clogged Blood and Should Take Gude's
Pepto-Mangan

The man who walks with a slouch usually has a heavy, dull expression on his face. The eyelids droop in a lazy, languid way and he goes around feeling dead tired most of the time. Bad blood, all clogged up with poisons from the system, makes a man feel that way.

That man with bad blood has let himself get in a rundown condition. He has overdone somehow, either physically by straining, trying to do too much, or mentally, by worrying, doing without sufficient sleep. He needs new blood. Gude's Pepto-Mangan taken in regular doses every day is just the right blood builder. It drives off all the poisons. It makes blood, rich and red. When the blood gets back to normal, the color improves and the eyes brighten. It braces a man up.

Druggists sell it in liquid or convenient tablet form. The full name, "Gude's Pepto-Mangan," is on each package.—adv.

THE MOONBEAM PRINCE

By Juanita Hamel

Copyright, 1921, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc., Great Britain rights reserved.

THE magic that may lie in the moonbeam path depends on the heart as well as the mind of her who dreams, and not at all—the cynics say—upon the setting of the room of visions. Neither the size of the window, nor yet the incense, has anything to do with what she sees in the path of the moon. But maybe the near approach of the kiss of HER Moonbeam Prince may be heralded by the sweet savor that rises from the burning incense when touched by the magic of the beams that bear him on the wings of LOVE.

YOUR HEALTH What Clemenceau Says You Should Do to Live Long

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
Commissioner of Health, New York City

NOT long ago Georges Clemenceau, the "Tiger" of France, celebrated his 80th birthday. When asked the secret of unflinching youth, he is reported to have said:

"Go to bed at 7 and rise at 4. Work hard and never eat meat. Confine your diet to oatmeal, toast, flaked fish, water and milk. Use no liquor. Never dine out and never marry."

With most of this advice I am in full agreement. I assume the last statement was merely the "Tiger's" little joke. It might well be that he originated the old conundrum, "Why do married men live longer than single men?" Whoever it was chuckled when he gave the answer: "They don't. It only seems longer."

As a matter of fact, happy marriage lengthens life. When I read this dispatch I thought of my father in his 84th year and of an uncle who will be 87 next July. They are healthy and husky, hale and hearty. In spite of marriage! Their wives—God bless them!—have done much to keep these men well through all these years. My family, certainly, must look upon Clemenceau's edict about marriage as a birthday witticism.

If Clemenceau gives himself nine hours of sleep, it is rather more than the average man requires. But if one must choose between too many or too few hours of rest, Clemenceau's rule is to be preferred.

Few men have died because of hard work. If you sleep well and eat properly, you can work hard and never suffer from it. Lazing and idleness have caused ten times more suffering and disease than even the hardest work has ever brought about.

Meat in moderation is not harmful, but it is better to eat no meat than to eat too much meat. The simple food Clemenceau recommends is sufficient for the maintenance of health and vigor. There can be no doubt that temperance has been the cause of much illness and human suffering. In America we need not stop to argue this question. The law has determined it.

Banquets, midnight suppers, unfamiliar food and abuse of the stomach will ruin any constitution. No man need expect to reach four score years if he indulges himself in such practices. When we may expect as simple food as our host's table as we have at home when the family dines alone, then, and not till then, will dining out be safe. Clemenceau is right.

Old age is the natural culmination of right living. Sleep in plenty, within limits, exercise in work, proper food and freedom from worry are the four secrets of a long life.

Abide by these rules religiously, as Clemenceau has done, and you may live as long and be somewhere near as useful as he has been.

Answers to Health Questions

A CONSTANT READER. Q—Kindly let me know if it is possible to have a birthmark, which is about one inch long, removed from my nose.

A—Yes, it can be removed by X-ray, radium or carbon dioxide in the hands of a competent doctor. But it usually leaves a white scar.

MRS. F. Q—My little girl, 10 years old, is very much afraid of the dark. She wakes up in the night and shakes with fear. What can I do to help her?

A—It may be hard to break her of the habit of fear at night. You should do everything possible to prove to her that there is no danger in the dark.

MDS. L. P. Q—Will you kindly tell me how much salicylic acid I should use to remove a large wart from my arm?

A—About five grains to the dram of either alcohol or collodion.

F. B. Q—I am a man 74 years old, and have enjoyed good health until recently, when I think I over-exercised myself. Since then my right leg swells up. There is no pain or discoloration. When I bathe the leg with hot water the swelling goes down, but as soon as I walk on it, it swells again. What would you advise me to do?

A—You should have your urine examined and your blood pressure taken, and submit the reports to your doctor, who, after a thorough examination, will prescribe the necessary treatment.

WORRIED WOMAN. Q—I am suffering from a swollen gland on the right side of my throat. This condition was caused by a shock. Will you please tell me if this trouble is serious, and what is the best treatment for it?

A—You should be examined by a throat specialist to make sure which glands are causing the trouble, and then place yourself under treatment. Some treatment, no doubt, would be very helpful.

CONSTANT READER. Q—What is the difference between typhus and typhoid fever?

A—They are separate and distinct diseases. Each is due to its own germ. Typhus is conveyed by body lice, while typhoid is usually traced to contaminated food or drink, such as milk, oysters or water. Typhus is of European origin, while typhoid is native to every soil. Typhus is short in duration and very often fatal. Typhoid is a slow, unrelenting condition, from which recovery is to be expected.

MR. S. A. U. Q—Kindly advise me what is the cause of my jumping at repeated intervals during my sleep. I am 64 years of age, and I work daily, as I did 30 years ago.

A—You must have more recreation. Do not expect to do the same amount of work you did 30 years ago.

Dr. Copeland will answer for readers of this paper questions on medical, hygienic and sanitation subjects that are of general interest. Where the subject of a letter is such that it cannot be published in this column, Dr. Copeland will, when the question is a proper one, write you personally, if a self-addressed, stamped envelope is enclosed. NEW VITAMINE TONIC FOOD PERFECTED AT ONE OF OUR LEADING MEDICAL COLLEGES

Provides the Growth-Promoting, Strength and Life-Giving Elements Lacking in Our Daily Food—Albany Druggist Interested.

Leading medical men of the country have for some time been advocating dietetic treatment rather than medicinal for many of the conditions for which medical tonics have been prescribed in the past.

Malnutrition, under-development of children, general debility, simple anaemia, blood impoverishment, loss of weight and run-down conditions respond rapidly to a properly balanced diet; that is, the addition to the daily food of a balancer which contains all the life-sustaining and growth-promoting elements so often lacking in our regular meals.

Vitamines—the curious growth-promoting, health-giving elements found chiefly in milk, yeast, leaf vegetables, eggs and the outer covering of rice, wheat and other cereals—are often eliminated from the modern diet because of scientific milling and over-cooking.

Until those vital elements are supplied, the body cannot attain its highest development, the system is weakened, and a lowering of vitality is the result.

Now science has discovered an easy way of supplying these health-building vitamins in the wonderful new tonic food called SUSTO—which was perfected by Dr. Philip B. Hawk, Professor of Physiological Chemistry at Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia.

Before SUSTO was offered to the public he subjected it to the most rigid tests and pronounced it the most perfectly balanced tonic food on the market.

SUSTO is not a medicine. It is a food balancer—it adds to the daily diet all the growth-promoting, strength, and life-giving vitamins of yeast, rice, eggs, milk, with beef protein and iron that we are not getting otherwise, and which are as necessary as fresh air to sustain life.

Therefore if you need strength—lack energy, are nervous, anaemic, run-down, thin and ailing—SUSTO will nourish the shrunken tissues, create strength, build up shattered nerves and energy.

Ask them about SUSTO at Mr. S. M. Thompson's drug store. If you try the treatment for one month at a cost of 10c a day and you are not in better health every way—weigh more and feel stronger—Mr. Thompson will return your money.—adv.

THE HOME KITCHEN

By JEANNETTE YOUNG NORTON

The Authority on Home Cooking

Do You Make the Most of Meat Salads?

MEAT and game salads are not used as often as they deserve to be in cool weather, for they are hearty and make excellent dishes for luncheons and Sunday night suppers. Also, they use up left-overs and may be prepared in the morning ready to dress and serve quickly when the time comes. Each kind of meat calls for its own peculiar dressing, and it is well to study these dressings so as to know which brings out the flavor most agreeably. Garnishing is always a point to consider, as the heavy salads, if not well served, do not seem dainty.

Veal Salad.
Dice two cupsful of cold cooked veal. Prepare the salad bowl as suggested for the chicken salad. Add to the meat a cupful of celery minced with half a pepper and six mint leaves. Add a grated onion and a finely chopped, sweet pickled gherkin. Toss the salad in a quarter-cupful of heavy French dressing, let stand for half an hour, then add a quarter-cupful of mayonnaise made with mustard. Mix well and put into the salad bowl. Garnish with egg or sweet pickled cucumber slices.

Chicken and Turkey Salad.
These meats are practically interchangeable in salad, except that the turkey meat is a bit dryer unless a little of the dark meat from the second joint is mixed with the white meat. To two cupsful of the finely cut-up meat, add a cupful of chopped celery and a cupful of crisp lettuce cut up with kitchen scissors. Wipe the inside of the salad bowl with a dry bud of garlic and line the bowl with lettuce leaves. When the salad is mixed, put a chopful of egg over it and a tablespoonful of washed capers or minced gherkin. Fold in sufficient mayonnaise to moisten the salad thoroughly, put it into the bowl and garnish with olive curls spread with a thin covering of anchovy paste or peanut butter. For the turkey salad, the juice of an onion may be added to the salad if desired.

Mutton Salad.
Dice mutton enough to fill two cups. Cut enough asparagus tips to fill one cup. Wash a tablespoonful of capers and grate a small onion. Mix ingredients and moisten with a good mint sauce, let stand for one hour to flavor, then drain and serve on lettuce leaves with a tablespoonful of green mayonnaise on top of each portion. Slice half of a red pepper fine and put a little in the centre of each heap of mayonnaise.

Grapefruit and Duck Salad.
Dice two cupsful of cold duck. Free the pulp of one large grapefruit from all of the white skin and set to drain. Put the duck into a marinade of French dressing to which a sliced onion and six cloves have been added. Let stand for an hour, drain the meat and mix it with the grapefruit pulp, wrap or fold in mayonnaise and serve in lettuce leaves. Garnish with olives stuffed with celery or nuts.

What Daily Care Will Do to Keep Your Nails Beautiful

By LUCREZIA BORI
The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

LUCREZIA BORI

PRETTY nails are a valuable asset to a woman's hands. Of course, not every one is gifted with lovely filbert-shaped nails, but with daily care the appearance of the nails may be greatly improved.

The busy woman may say that she hasn't time to stop and care for her hands; that keeping them clean is all she can do. I am sure you will consider this a mistake. Take a little time especially if your duties are at home.

It is the home-maker who spends her mornings in the kitchen, washing dishes or cleaning the house, who oftenest complains about the appearance of her nails. Such work as dusting and washing is really hard on the nails, and if you are a housekeeper you should make a point of wearing gloves on every possible occasion, so that you may protect your nails.

Then, even if you say you haven't time to care for your nails, you should try to make time. There are minutes in the long days of the woman who stays at home when she has to pause between her duties. Perhaps she must wait a little before the flat-iron is at the right temperature for ironing, or until the hot water is ready for a household adventure.

Instead of deliberately killing time at such intervals, why not seize upon these minutes and let them be devoted to the care of the nails? The result of a little attention daily will more than please you when you see the shining gleam of your nails.

of your friends at your well-kept nails. You do not need an elaborate manicure set to insure the beauty of your finger-nails. A good file is essential. An orange stick and some emery boards are also helpful. Doubtless, you always have a lemon on hand, and this is an excellent cleanser. Rub the tips of your fingers into the pulp, and the juice will loosen any dirt around your nails, and remove any stains.

Rinse them thoroughly after this application and wipe them dry. Then put a tiny wad of sterilized cotton upon your orange stick and carefully remove all soil from beneath your nails. After this is done remove the cotton, put a fresh piece on the stick, and work around the cuticle in order to prevent it from covering the moons that make your nails so pretty.

Do not go at this roughly, or you will break the delicate skin, and then hang-nails will detract from the beauty of your nails. Should you already have any of these, you should take a fine cuticle scissors and gently snip off these tattered pieces of skin.

If you will push your cuticle down daily you will not be troubled with these disagreeable features. Now, having pushed back the cuticle and removed stains and particles of dust from beneath your nails, you should take your emery board or your file and gently shape your nails. If any of them are broken you may have to file them somewhat shorter than the standards of beauty demand, but this, of course, will be remedied as they gradually grow longer.

In shaping your nails, consider well the shape of your fingers, and model them so that you may accentuate the beauty of your finger-tips. Do not think that you must have them very long and pointed just because certain of your friends affect such a style. Individuality in shaping your nails is just as important as in the choice of your dress.

Follow these suggestions daily and you will find that your nails will greatly increase in beauty, while the time you spend on their care is really negligible.

PLACE OF HONOR IS HELD BY BUICK

"The honor position at this year's New York Automobile Show, again awarded to Buick by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce for the greatest volume of business during the previous year, is significant not only in itself but because of the reasons which brought about this leadership," says E. T. Strong, general sales manager of the Buick Motor company.

"No car can build up such tremendous public confidence as represented in Buick production and sales unless that car has fully satisfied the motoring public," declares Mr. Strong. "No single quality in a car, it is apparent, can bring this about—the car must must measure up to public demand in every respect.

"Whether car owners are conscious of it or not, the chassis and mechanism of a car are the most vital parts—and Buick for 21 years has consistently and unswervingly developed its well-defined engineering principles. This mechanical soundness of Buick is one reason for the position at the front Buick occupies today."
